Laura,
Jose Caratini can help check on available cabins for gov't travel – he is familiar with the travel rules for longer flights. I believe the flight segment has to be over a certain number of hours to qualify.

FYI...whatever government rate that we can book for better seats I definitely want to do on these long flights given my older back.

Mike,

I suggest you book in YCA class, which is a government air fare; we are permitted to do so is my understanding. This allows you better seating for the longer flights, and that will be about $2300-2500. If you get a S class for some of the segments (S is not always available, and does not allow comfortable seating for 14 hours of air time) it will price out between $1900 - 2300.

We recommend you make your flight reservations now with BCD and request your seats. Just do not ask to have the ticket issued now after your TA is approved.
